Atomic Power: The Buchanan Brothers [1946]

Atomic Power, written the morning after the bombing of Hiroshima by North Carolina country artist and radio personality Fred Kirby, is without a doubt the most popular of the country Bomb songs (the lyric referencing Nagasaki was presumably added the morning after that bombing). Kirby immediately began singing his new song on his radio shows including a program called 'Hillbilly Star Time.' According to Kirby, in a 1977 interview with country music scholar Charles K. Wolfe, a representative from Leeds Music Corporation traveled from New York to negotiate publishing rights for the song. Leeds then apparently showed the song to Bob Miller, who was the Buchanan Brothers' manager. Miller offered Kirby a contract with RCA in New York, but Kirby turned him down and instead chose to work with Sonora, a much smaller company that contracted with him for eight sides and $2,000. Miller then had his act, The Buchanan Brothers, record the song around the same time that Kirby entered the recording studio to lay down his cut of Atomic Power.

As a result of the near-simultaneous recordings, the May 1, 1946 issue of 'Billboard' contained an announcement for both versions of the song. But it was RCA Victor's promotional clout that got The Buchanans' record featured in the trade paper's 'Reviews of New Records' preview section:

BUCHANAN BROTHERS
(Victor 20-1850)
Atomic Power—FT; V.
Singing an Old Hymn—FT; V.

During the three verses of Atomic Power, the Buchanan Brothers (Chester and Lester) trace the history of the atomic bomb and issue a warning that all of us will be blown to Kingdom Come if the power is misused. It's a fast hymn-like tune and keeps you listening.

The Buchanan Brothers are popular enough to make both sides pay off.

The Buchanan Brothers, though they hated the song ("Atomic Power...stunk" said Chester Buchanan in a 1973 interview with 'The Journal of Country Music'), had a hit with it on the 'Billboard' charts. In fact, Leeds Publishing purchased ad space in the May 25, 1946 edition of 'Billboard' to further trumpet the tune's success: "The whole world is talking about 'Atomic Power,' the Greatest Folk Song in Twenty Years." Leeds would later place weekly ads in the publication under the title 'Atomic Power News' to continue tracking news of their hit.

The Buchanan Brothers' version proved to be so popular that Kirby's composition was then quickly covered by at least five other country artists including Riley Shepard (for Musicraft), Rex Allen and the Prairie Ramblers (for Mercurv). Red
There's a Power Greater Than Atomic

Refrain
That God is still supreme
Great men came and plans were laid
To equal that of God
That will sweep away the sod
Will melt at His command
Falls upon this sinful land
Not just some, but everyone must die
If he strikes us (strikes us) with His mighty power
And everything can take
That God gave to him everything
In the great plan he just made
And his will to have his way

Atomic Power: The Buchanan Brothers [1946]

Oh this world is at a tremble with its strength and mighty power
There sending up to heaven to get the brimstone fire
Take warning my dear brother, be careful how you plan
You're working with the power of God's own holy hand

Refrain: Atomic power, atomic power
Was given by the mighty hand of God
Atomic power, atomic power
It was given by the mighty hand of God

You remember two great cities in a distant foreign land
When scorched from the face of earth the power of Japan
Be careful my dear brother, don't take away the joy
But use it for the good of man and never to destroy

Refrain

Hiroshima, Nagasaki paid a big price for their sins
When scorched from the face of earth their battles could not win
But on that day of judgment when comes a greater power
We will not know the minute and we'll not know the hour

There's A Power Greater Than Atomic: The Buchanan Brothers [1947]

After The Buchanan Brothers scored a hit with their version of Fred Kirby's Atomic Power in 1946, two friends and co-workers of Kirby's decided to pen a sequel that paid particular attention to the just completed Bikini Atoll tests in the Pacific. Arval Hogan and Roy Grant, better known by their performing name of Whitey and Hogan, were so impressed by the fact that some of the ships at Bikini didn't sink that they decided to write a thematic follow-up to Kirby's earlier song. In a 1977 interview with Charles K. Wolfe, they recalled their inspiration:

"We just got to thinking about that big test out in the Pacific; those ships still standing after the blast, that's what gave us the idea," said Hogan. Grant added: "Just prior to that (test), Fred Kirby had written his song, 'Atomic Power,' so Hogan and myself, both being children of devoted Christians, the idea came to us one

Man may talk about his power
And his will to have his way
How he can take the lives of men
And rule them all someday
There's one thing he's forgetting
In the great plan he just made
That God gave to him everything
And everything can take

Refrain: There's a power (power) greater than atomic
It's a power of the One that sits on high
If he strikes us (strikes us) with His mighty power
Not just some, but everyone must die

When this power that I tell of
Falls upon this sinful land
Every rock within the mountains
Will melt at His command
So when you're planning power
That will sweep away the sod
Don't forget there is no power
To equal that of God

Refrain

To the island of Bikini
Great men came and plans were laid
To prove to all the people
What a power He had made
But after it was over
Even through the blinding steam
The sea and sky unchanged should prove
That God is still supreme
